USIU AFRICA
United States International University-Africa
Education to take you places

28/01/2026

The Admissions Team

Recruitment and Admissions

Coventry University

Dear Admissions Team,

Re: Academic Reference for Mr. Ken Jomo Chege

I am writing to provide my support for Mr. Ken Jomo Chege's application for the MA in Social Work at Coventry University. I had the pleasure of teaching Ken in several undergraduate psychology courses at United States International University (USIU-Africa), namely Developmental Psychology (PSY1105, Spring 2012), Courtship & Marriage (PSY3150, Spring 2013), and Research Methods (PSY4110, Fall 2015).

In my classroom, Ken demonstrated a consistent ability to engage with complex psychological concepts, particularly those relating to human development, family systems, and interpersonal relationships. His performance in my Courtship & Marriage course revealed a nuanced understanding of the psychosocial dynamics within families, a foundation that is directly applicable to social work practice. Furthermore, in my Research Methods class, he developed strong analytical and critical thinking skills, competently designing and understanding research – a crucial asset for evidence-based practice in social work.

What truly distinguishes Ken is his profound sense of empathy and his long-standing commitment to community welfare, which I understand predates his university studies. His initiative to co-found a support program for individuals with Keratoconus, helping children access vital surgical procedures, is a powerful testament to his inherent drive for social justice and client advocacy. This is not merely an item on a CV; it is a clear demonstration of the character, resilience, and compassion that are the bedrock of an effective social worker.

Ken possesses a unique blend of intellectual curiosity and practical empathy. His decision to transition from International Relations into social work is a strategic and purposeful one, combining a macro-level understanding of global systems with a deep desire for direct, meaningful client interaction. I am confident that his diverse experiences, from aged care support to pharmaceutical sales, have only strengthened his cross-cultural communication skills and his ability to build trust with people from all walks of life.

In summary, I have no hesitation in recommending Ken Jomo Chege for your program. He has the academic capability, personal integrity, and motivated sense of purpose to excel in the demanding field of social work. I believe he will not only be a successful student but will go on to become a reflective and impactful practitioner.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you require any further information.

P.O. Box 14634-00800, Nairobi, Kenya | Tel: +254-730-116-291/290 | Email: info@usiu.ac.ke

www.usiu.ac.ke

Sincerely,

Prof.. Josephine Arasa

Associate Professor of Psychology

Psychology Department

School of Humanities & Social Sciences

United States International University – Africa

Tel: +254-730 116 643| Email: jarasa@usiu.ac.ke |Cell phone: +254714453135